COFFEE ROASTERS

Transparency Report 2024

OUR MISSION: Connecting with and Caring for the Community gathering around Beautiful Coffee

For us this means that we care about how our way of doing business affects everyone along the value chain of coffee. From producers, to pickers, to importers and shippers, to our own production team and cafe staff, to the community where we live and work, to our customers - we want everyone to benefit in some way and we want to leave the world a better place. Those are easy words to say, and there are many times when reality falls short of the goal, but it is the goal we are pursuing.

The Speciality Coffee Transaction Guide

This year we are continuing this connection and sharing our purchasing information with the Specialty Coffee Transaction Guide. Commodity prices in the coffee industry continue to create a volatile business environment, so this data is crucial to helping farmers make informed decisions, particularly because this is not information easily attained by individual producers.

Company Giving

We also work to remember that the coffee business is conducted in a larger community, and that there are needs there as well. Since 2020, we have given 1% of our sales revenue away to needs in our local community and to organizations that work in the places where coffee is produced. We know and respect that not everybody views the world in the same way, but we trust that we do share the hope that the world, and the world of coffee could be a place where there is equity for all, and where everybody who helps bring us the beautiful coffee we love is treated equitably and justly. You can learn more about the organizations we support on the giving back page of our website.

Looking to the Future

- We believe one of the best things we can do to make coffee more sustainable is to pay generously for high quality coffee. In 2024 we paid an average of $5.21 per pound of green coffee. The commodity price for coffee in the same period was $1.82 - $3.32/lb.
- Our next step in sustainability is to find ways to make sure that value is shared equitably along the coffee value chain - from us as roasters, to importers, to producers, and to those who provide labor on farms. In all honesty, that is a tall order. Annual visits to origin are not enough to verify that value is being shared equitably. More and more, we rely on our importer partners to help create a market where the value of equity is held up high. We really believe that until everyone involved in coffee production receives fair compensation for their part, coffee will not be sustainable.
